

FAITH & FAVOR MOBILITY

A restorative, welcoming class that keeps members moving and recovering well.

THE STANDARD

A class built to invite people in, not intimidate them out -- consistent structure, real modification, and a coach who notices who is in the room.

01 / PROGRAM IDENTITY

FAITH & FAVOR MOBILITY

Faith & Favor Mobility is Echelon's restorative group format: a recurring class built around real recovery work, not just a slower version of a hard workout squeezed into the same hour.

The measure of a good class here is not how tired people are afterward. It is whether they come back next week, and whether the person in their first class ever felt behind.

WHAT MEMBERS RECEIVE

- Guided mobility and recovery work scaled to every ability level in the room.
- A consistent weekly structure members can count on returning to.
- Real modification options, not a one-size approach dressed up as inclusive.
- Direct coach attention even inside a group setting.

COACHING BOUNDARIES

Screen new or first-time guests for injuries and scale accordingly before class begins. This is restorative movement, not rehabilitation -- refer out for anything beyond a mobility and recovery scope.

02 / THE CLASS RHYTHM

THE SAME CARE, EVERY WEEK

Consistency is the product. A member should never wonder what kind of class they are walking into.

PHASE	COACH ACTION
Before Class	Confirm roster, playlist, movement theme, and modification options.
At Check-In	Greet each member personally and flag anyone needing a scaled option.
During Class	Coach pace, breath, and quality -- restorative work is still coached work.
After Class	Send a recovery reminder and invite the next reservation.

03 / DELIVERY SEQUENCE

RUNNING THE WEEKLY CLASS

Complete these in order, every week. Create a Coach Command task for any first-time guest who needs follow-up.

STEP 1 PREPARE

Confirm the roster and note any first-time guests.

Set the movement theme and prepare modification options in advance.

Check the space and equipment before members arrive.

STEP 2 WELCOME

Greet every member by name at check-in.

Ask first-time guests about injuries or limitations before class starts.

Set the tone: welcoming, unhurried, and clearly coached.

STEP 3 COACH THE CLASS

Cue breath and quality, not just movement completion.

Offer visible modifications without singling anyone out.

Stay attentive to who needs more support in the room.

STEP 4 FOLLOW UP & TRACK

Send a recovery reminder and the next class invitation.

Track attendance weekly and flag members who have gone quiet.

Personally follow up with every first-time guest.

MEMBER COMMUNICATION STARTERS

FIRST-TIME GUEST WELCOME

Welcome to Faith & Favor Mobility. This class meets you where you are -- every movement has a modification, so focus on how it feels, not how it looks. Let me know before we start if there is anything I should be mindful of.

POST-CLASS RECOVERY REMINDER

Great work today. Give your body a little extra water and rest tonight, and I will see you at the next class on [day]. Reply here if anything felt off and I will help you adjust for next time.

ATTENDANCE FOLLOW-UP

I noticed you have missed the last couple of classes and wanted to check in. No pressure at all -- just want to make sure the schedule still works and that everything is okay. I would love to see you back when it fits.

Restorative work is still Echelon coaching. The standard shows up in how consistently a member is seen, not how hard they are pushed.
