

PREGNANCY

Your welcome packet for training safely through preconception, pregnancy, and postpartum recovery.

Welcome

Welcome to Echelon. Pregnancy is not one program, it is three, matched to where you actually are right now: Preconception, Prenatal, or Postpartum. Your coach assigns the stage that fits your life today, and every exercise choice is filtered through what is safe and appropriate for that stage first, results second.

Your Program At a Glance

Format: Preconception and Prenatal follow a steady 12-week structure. Postpartum is phased and does not repeat, because recovery timing depends on your body and your provider's clearance, not a fixed calendar.

Stage	What It's For	Structure
Preconception	Building a training base before conception	Steady 12-week strength and pelvic floor coordination work.
Prenatal	Training safely through pregnancy	Steady 12-week structure, adjusted trimester to trimester.
Postpartum	Rebuilding after delivery	Phased: Weeks 1-4 breath and pelvic floor, Weeks 5-8 core rebuild and walking, Weeks 9-12 return to strength. Never begins before your provider's clearance.

How We Work Together

- Your day-by-day training lives in Today's Work inside your Member Portal, log in anytime to see what's next, and mark it complete once you finish.
- Check in honestly. Tell your coach what actually happened, not what you think we want to hear, an honest "I missed two days" helps us adjust; a false "everything's perfect" just delays the fix.

- If something hurts (not just the normal soreness of training), stop, message your coach before your next session, and see a clinician if it does not resolve. Never push through real pain.
- Your plan will change. What you start Week 1 with is not what you will be doing Week 8, that is not the plan failing, that is the plan working.

What Makes Pregnancy Different

Pregnancy is not one program, it is three, matched to where you actually are: Preconception, Prenatal, or Postpartum. Your coach assigns the stage that fits your life right now, and every exercise choice is filtered through what is safe and appropriate for that stage first, results second.

The Echelon Standard

Every Echelon program is built on the same four things: Structure, a proven system that removes the guesswork; Accountability, coaching and check-ins that keep momentum moving; Commitment, progress earned by returning to the standard, especially when motivation is low; and Faith, strength that starts internally, character and purpose driving everything else. The exercises in front of you are specific to your goal. The standard behind them is the same for every person who trains with us.
